

Misconceptions?

- Studying the science literacy and learning goals is necessary for curriculum developers, not for teachers.
- The most efficient way for teachers to improve their own understanding of science, mathematics, and technology and their interconnections is to take advanced courses.
- State and school-district groups can start from scratch and develop a set of learning goals comparable to those in Benchmarks and Standards in a short time.